Why study this course

The BA (hons) Child and Adolescent Studies course is highly relevant and up to date with current practice and expectations of employers within the field of working with children and young people. This course explores how and why we work with children, young people and their families in a multi-agency context. The course will prepare you for the world of work by providing you with both an academic and vocational relevant curriculum which focuses on the needs of children, young people and families.

Educational Aims

Aims of the BA Child and Adolescent Studies:

- To provide subject-specific knowledge and skills that prepares students for a career in the field of working with children, young people and their families as part of the wider society.
- To foster a commitment amongst students of the nature of discrimination, oppression and inequality in services for children, young people and their families and of ways to minimise these in practice and to be able to work with the impact of these on children, young people and their families.

To promote learning that fosters co-operation and collaboration as a means of addressing some of the complexities inherent in children and young people's services through a multi-disciplinary teaching approach that is based on recent policy and research initiatives, for example, multi-agency working.

Graduate Impact Statements

The course has been designed to develop graduates who are able to

- Apply a comprehensive understanding of key concepts, debates and theories to the area of working with children and young people and their families to provide a service that is effective, informed and based on the newest research findings and recommendations. Providing responses that are informed by policy and research are key to service provision in this sector.

- Take part in and develop current debates, policies, approaches and theories relevant to child and adolescent studies to evaluate and develop the organisation and sector in which you work in order to improve services and outcomes for children, young people and their families as part of the broader society.
- Work individually and in collaboration with others in a variety of situations to assess, reach conclusions and develop solutions that address child and adolescent related needs of individuals and groups with a commitment to equal opportunities and anti-discriminatory practice.

Course Learning Outcomes

LO 1. Demonstrate a sound working knowledge of relevant domestic and international policy, legislation and service provision and how these are constructed in relation to social need and social problems.

LO 2. Evidence a contextualised understanding of key theoretical perspectives and their applications within child care policy and practice in relation to welfare provision.

LO 3. Evaluate the impact of difference, diversity and social construction of childhood within both a national and international context with regards to the lived realities of children's lives, opportunities and service provision.

LO 4. Relate theory to practice in the field of children and young people's services gained through direct experience and the literature in this and related areas;

LO 5. Demonstrate a familiarity with key research methodologies and techniques, selecting and applying a methodology appropriately to complete a theory or practice-related dissertation project investigating a relevant social problem, issue or question relating to childhood taking account of relevant ethical considerations.

LO 6. Evidence a firm foundation in reflection and reflexivity to develop your learning throughout your degree enabling you to apply knowledge gained in both a national and international context relevant in the service provision for children and young people.

In order to qualify for the award of BA (Hons) Child and Adolescent Studies (with Professional Practice year) students will need to meet all of the outcomes above and:

- Demonstrate knowledge and analytical understanding of professional practice by successfully completing an approved period of approved work place practice.

Learning and Teaching

A variety of teaching methods are employed across all levels of the degree in order to encourage the acquisition of subject knowledge and foster the subject specific and transferable skills associated with specified learning outcomes. These teaching methods include lectures, discussion-based seminars, presentations by class members, group-work, tutorial activities, problem solving, computer-based activities, problem based learning, and online interactive activities using Virtual Learning Environment (VLE) known as BREO (Bedfordshire Resources for Education Online). BREO is utilised at all levels of study and it contains a variety of material and is used in a variety of ways including e-learning and accessing sites elsewhere that provide practice at certain skills. Multiple teaching and assessment methods are used to ensure students' personal learning style and preferences are accommodated as far as possible.

Reflective learning is also linked to iProspects, an interactive programme accessed via the Careers Service website where students record key learning experiences and insights for later use as a bank of examples to build a tailored CV when applying for jobs. This is done throughout the course to enable students to become more aware of how their academic learning is contributing to their personal and professional development.

During the first year, Level 4, lectures are introductory, outlining key concepts and issues in relation to child and adolescent studies and the social sciences. This foundation will enable students to subsequently pursue study strategies more independently. At level 4 the workshops are tailored specifically for Child and Adolescent Studies students linking and extending the lecture material directly to relevant topic areas and research to do with children and adolescents.

At Levels 5 and 6 lectures are more discursive, highlighting debates, controversies or issues which students can pursue further through workshops and independent study. The learning will shift from guided to more independent styles as students take more responsibility for the direction of their learning.

Assessment

A range of appropriate and effective assessments will enable you to demonstrate your acquisition of knowledge and skills. The assessment methods used across the course include:

- Written assignments – these will vary in style and will include essays, reports, reflective accounts as well as other written tasks that we will prepare you for.
- Examinations: These will be a range of multiple choice computer examinations at level four demonstrating subject knowledge. Throughout your three years there will also be several in-class tests allowing you to apply and use the theory and knowledge that you have gained through your studies.
- Oral and Poster presentations that demonstrate verbal and presentation skills through sharing information and knowledge with others in innovative ways.
- Group work will allow you to demonstrate your skills of research in a group, it will develop your skills in collaborative and multi-agency working and group management. Even though you will be working in a group you will be assessed on an individual basis and will receive an individual grade based on your input and performance.
- The Dissertation allows you to undertake a complex research project and communicate knowledge, findings and recommendations demonstrating your ability to implement and deliver a self directed, complex and solution focused task.

The assessments will develop across the course and will allow you to gain skills and acquire knowledge, receive feedback on your progress that will allow you to implement knowledge and feedback into further assessments. For example, at level four the learning of the skill of report/essay writing will take place before you write your first essay or report. At level five and six assessment will allow you to demonstrate your understanding and the application of relevant and up to date knowledge to the field of children and young people's services.

Working in groups is an important attribute and as part of the assessment process you will work in groups with others. However, your contribution will be individually graded and you will receive a grade based on your contribution to the assessed group work.

Assessment will be a part of the learning process to develop your knowledge and skills in order to become a highly effective practitioner by the end of your studies

Developing your employability

Students who register for the degree with professional practice year will additionally attend a series of workshops and activities related to securing a suitable placement and compulsory briefings at the end of year 2 to ensure that all legal requirements for health and safety, safeguarding etc. training have been met. This will be explained more fully in your professional practice handbook once you have registered with the Careers and Employability Service's Student Development and Awards Team in your first year. If you will be working with children and/or vulnerable people you will be required to have a DBS check and undertake Safeguarding and Prevent training.

After Graduation

Typical graduate destination for Child and Adolescent Studies students include

- Direct work with service users in areas such as:
 - children and families
 - drug and alcohol misuse
 - young people
 - youth offending services
 - working with disabled and/or special education needs
- Work in other areas of the human services such as:
 - policy development
 - welfare
 - community development

Further study at Masters level (Level seven), for example, MSc Social Work, MA International Social Work and Social Development, MA Childhood and Youth: Applied Perspectives can be applied for.

Additional Information

Student Support during the course

All students will be allocated a personal academic tutor at the start of the course. The personal academic tutor will provide students with personal tutorials providing academic support and monitoring of academic and professional development. For part-time students, the initial meeting with personal academic tutors will focus on clarifying the study programme and making unit choices, where required, to ensure a progressive and meaningful academic pathway over the duration of the course. Students are also placed in learning sets, which provide informal peer-support. Unit leads and the course coordinators are available to discuss unit and course level concerns through published office hours and personal appointments arranged by e-mail.

Peer Assisted Learning (PAL) is a part of the Level 4 curriculum. As you enter your first year of University you may have a lot of questions and concerns about the course you are doing, your lectures, using the library, finding your way on campus, the subjects you are covering, the preparing and submitting assignments, and so on. PAL sessions are designed to help you address these. PAL sessions are compulsory timetabled lessons, but they are less formal than the lectures and seminars that you will be getting used to. They are run by specially trained second and third year students who studied the same material as you in their first years, and who will be able to give you their advice and the benefit of their experience. You will work through hand-outs, notes, textbooks and set reading based on your course material. These small group sessions are designed to help you to achieve your full potential in your first year and to set you on the path to excel throughout your degree.

The core Level 4 unit Skills for Social Scientists, develops both students' study skills and Academic English skills required to succeed. The feedback given to students as part of the assessment process will enable self-assessment and development of learning and skills, and promote progress to overcome any learning problems identified. Tutors will also refer students onto appropriate services in the event of issues that lie outside the boundaries of the tutor. For students requiring additional input on study and/or academic writing skills, the teaching team will advise students to make use of Professional and Academic Development (PAD) study support drop-ins where appropriate support can be provided to support specific learning needs. For students where English is a second language, the University provides free English lessons from intermediate up to more advanced level English language skills. For students needing further assistance with developing their IT skills, Library Services offer tutor lead computer skills training workshops.

3.4 Subject specific abilities and skills
i use established theories and concepts of Social Policy and other social sciences to analyse how social needs, social problems and policies themselves are constructed, reconstructed and understood in national, international and global contexts	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
ii distinguish between, critically reflect on and evaluate different theoretical, empirical, normative, moral and political approaches to social problems and issues	✓		✓	✓	✓	✓
iii understand the political and economic contexts of Social Policy and ways in which these impact on policy development and implementation	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
iv locate, retrieve, interpret, evaluate, and apply, relevant qualitative and quantitative data derived from social surveys and other sources	✓		✓	✓	✓
v undertake individually and/or collaboratively investigations of social questions, issues and problems. This involves the ability to frame appropriate research questions; identify suitable research problems; and techniques in the collection, management and manipulation of data, including secondary data, and other information; the use of established electronic databases for information retrieval; the construction of coherent and reasoned arguments; and the presentation of clear conclusions and recommendations.	✓		✓	✓	✓

3.5 Generic Skills
i problem-solving skills: Social Policy encourages problem-based learning, imagination and flexibility in seeking and evaluating alternative solutions, through critical reflection, to social problems	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
ii social research skills: Social Policy enables students to work independently using a range of established social research methods to gather relevant information, manage and manipulate data, and analyse and interpret their meaning addressing human social needs in a global context.	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
iii evaluative and analytical skills: Social Policy produces policy-literate and numerate students, able to summarise, analyse and critique arguments, reports, documents and other written audio-visual and verbal data	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
iv sensitivity to the values and interests of others: the teaching of Social Policy contributes to the development of students' capacity for self-reflection and, in particular, their ability to listen to, reflect on, and interact with, the views and beliefs of others; and to take account of their own normative and moral positions in order to understand how human needs are experienced and met	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
v an ability to relate to wider international and global contexts: Social Policy fosters critical awareness and appreciation of transnational and globalised social problems, and of and of addressing human social needs in a global context.	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
3.6 Additional Generic Skills
i personal communication skills: the ability to convey ideas and arguments effectively, using a variety of media, to a range of audiences. This includes verbal and written presentations, technology-enhanced where appropriate, clearly communicating meaning to a third party, and using appropriate academic conventions	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
ii self-management of learning and personal resilience: the ability to work independently, within deadlines, supported only by broad guidance as to sources and objectives. Graduates are able to organise their learning in terms of effective planning, time-management and presentation. Furthermore, they are able to reflect on their learning in ways that enhance their personal and professional development.	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
iii team-working skills: Social Policy graduates have interpersonal skills that allow them to collaborate with others and to contribute effectively in group-based research and problem solving	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
iv information and communications technology skills: Social Policy graduates are proficient in the use of a range of technologies and software, including the internet and social media platforms, to access, search, store, transit and manipulate relevant information; and to conduct various forms of computer-based data analysis and presentation.	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
